A watershed is an area of land that drains to the same waterbody. A large watershed (like the Wolf River) can include smaller 'watersheds', called basins. In the map below, you can see how many of the basins drain to the Wolf River. Memphis has three large watersheds (the Wolf River, Loosahatchie River, and Nonconnah Creek) that drain to the World's fourth largest watershed- The Mississippi River Watershed!

Storm water can carry harmful pollution to our rivers through the watershed. Come learn what this means to you!
